New Bay St. Louis post office to open Wednesday

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

Wednesday will be the first day for business at the new Bay St. Louis Post Office on US-90.

Beginning Wednesday, the doors of the current post office on Main Street will be locked and postal patrons must go to the downtown station on Second Street or the new post office, according to Tom Hill, postmaster for Bay St. Louis.

He said mail will be put in the boxes as usual on Tuesday morning although it will be moving day.

"We hope the move will not cause much trouble to customers," Hill said.

Customers with mailboxes at the Main Street post office may still get their mail in downtown Bay St. Louis at the Second Street station.

Hill said there are approximately as many boxes at the new downtown station as in the Main Street location.

However it was necessary for some customers with mailboxes at the old location to get a new number to continue with the same size of box at the Second Street station, he said.

"We have notified everyone whose box number will change and if a person has not been notified then their mail box number will probably remain the same," Hill said.

Anyone who would like to get a box at the new post office should file an application. There are 2,554 boxes at the new location.

The US-90 location has approximately 23,000 square feet of working space compared to 6,600 including the unuseable basement and up stairs sections, according to Hill.

"At the Main Street post office we have actually been operating in 3,100 square feet," he said.

Although the new post office will have almost seven times the amount of operating space as the old Bay St. Louis post office, only a single additional employee was added to the staff as custodian.

"The remainder of employees are the same," Hill said.

The new post office has an additional feature of 50 parcel lockers. These lockers will be used for persons who receive packages or such a large amount of mail that it will not fit in their mailboxes.

A locker key will be placed in their mailbox which will enable them to get in the parcel locker at any time without having to wait for regular post office business hours.

For customer convience, there will also be five window clerk stations at the new post office, Hill said.

"This means customers will be served much faster in the rush periods," he said.

"In Bay St. Louis we are actually increasing the amount of services offered to the public with the additon of the three window clerk stations in the new post office plus similiar services to be offered at the downtown station," Hill said.

"While in many cities the services are being cut, the Postal Service in Bay St. Louis is offering additional services and an extra postal outlet," he continued.

There will be no change in services for Waveland post office mail box customers but city carriers for home delivery of mail will operate out of the new Bay St. Louis facility, Hill said.

This means Waveland delivery or route customers will now pick up articles or packages either too large or otherwise undeliverable at the new Bay St. Louis post office on US-90.

There will be no permanent change in delivery times for any mail delivered or boxed, he added.

"However there may be some delay in getting mail boxed for customers until they have their address changed," he said.

Hill explained that mail currently with a 39520 zip code will be sent automatically to the downtown station.

For customers who have changed their address to get mail at the new post office which has a 39521 zip code, this mail will have to be sorted and then returned to the US-90 post office.

Having to cross reference old addresses with new addresses will also cause a delay.

In spite of the delays, Hill said all mail should be boxed by 10 a.m. and mail with the correct address will be boxed by 8:30 a.m. as usual.

Mail is delivered to the post office at 5 p.m. and at 7 a.m.

Hill said no formal grand opening ceremonies are planned but an open house will is planned for the near future.

"We are still having equipment installed and as soon as everything is ready we will have an open house," he said.

Hill also said the wall mural at the old Bay St. Louis Post Office will be moved if possible to the new location.

Waveland resident Nancy Gex is spearheading a move to save the mural which was painted during the Depression under a Works Progress Administration program.

Hill said he doesn't expect any problems in getting the mural moved and it will be a compliment to the colors in the new building and have better lighting.

Several oak trees on the site were saved following public outcry when the site was purchased but the limbs must be trimmed to 11 feet of the ground to prevent an accident involving campers or other vehicles with extra height. Efforts to save old mural continuing

BY DENA BISNETTE

If permission can be obtained from the U.S. Postal Service and funds can be raised, it will be possible to move a Depression-era wall mural from the Main Street Post Office in Bay St. Louis to the new facility on U.S.-90.

Postmaster Tom Hill said Saturday he already has a spot with good, natural lighting in the new post office picked out for the mural, painted under the Works Progress Administration in 1938 by the late Gulf Coast artist, Louis Raynaud.

He said he expects an answer from the postal service on Monday with regard to moving the mural.

On Saturday, Waveland resident Nancy Gex and Hancock County Historical Society President Charles Gray met with Phyllis Hudson, an art conservator from New Orleans, La., with national credentials, and Ben Watkins, an Ocean Springs artist and restoration specialist who just finished a project in Biloxi, to look at the eight-by-four foot mural, which is called "Life on the Coast" and depicts a fishing scene.

Also at the informal meeting was Mark Mason, a local contractor who does architectural restoration work and who offered his services if a portion of the wall had to be removed.

Hudson said the mural was merely glued to the wall, but must be coated to keep the paint from flaking off and rolled up during removal.

She said the painting is especially well preserved for its type, which were painted in post offices throughout the South by the same artist.

She was unable to provide a cost estimate Saturday.

Hill said he wants the painting kept in the community, and Gex is trying to get local framers to donate their assistance in preparing it for display once permission and funds for restoration and moving are obtained.

Those interested in helping may call Gex at 467-7459.

BY DENA BISNETTE

Hancock County Circuit Court will convene for its first 1988 term Monday.

Court begins at 9:30 a.m. with Judge Jerry O. Terry presiding.

Principle items on the agenda include arraignments in two murder cases. Defendants in the two cases include Terry Lewis Coleman and Reggie Barrios.

Coleman, of Gulfport, is charged in the July 21, 1987, shooting of Waveland resident Louise Lewis, 23.

Lewis, who investigating officers said was a girlfriend of Coleman, was apparently arguing with him outside her appartment in the Pine Shadows complex off Waveland Avenue just before the shooting occurred.

Coleman was arrested by a Waveland Police Department officer about four minutes later.

The stabbing incident in which Barrios, a Lakeshore man, is accused also apparently occurred during an argument, according to statements made at the time of the arrest by authorities from Hancock County Sheriff's Department.

Barrios is charged in the Oct. 10, 1987, death of 51-year-old Clermont Harbor resident Charles Fred Nixon, during an incident at the home of another Clermont Harbor resident who was hosting a birthday party for Barrios.

Nixon had reportedly gone to the party to pick up his 15-year-old son.

Barrios was also stabbed in the incident but was treated and released from Hancock Medical Center.

Also scheduled for the first week of the session are 13 civil matters and 14 criminal cases.

In addition, the January 1988 Grand Jury will be selected and convened during the first week of the court term, Hancock County Circuit Clerk Pamela Metzler said.

Power company office under construction

Construction of Misissippi Power Company's Bay St. Louis/Pass Christian Area Office on the corner of U.S. 90 and Dunbar Avenue in Bay St. Louis will be marked by a ground-breaking ceremony Wednesday, Jan. 13 at 3 p.m.

The 15,300 square foot office will house all customer service and electric operations for the area and replace the local office on Main Street in Bay St. Louis.

It will also include a 10,500 square foot covered are for vehicles and electrical equipment loading.

"The additional space and combination of customer service and electric operations in the building will allow us to be more efficient and provide better service to our customers," Bay St. Louis/Pass Christian Area Supervisor Randy Catello said.

All customer transactions, including bill payments, applications for service or disconnection of service and billing inquiries, will be handled out of the office. A meeting room will also be available for public use.

Construction on the new office is expected to be completed in the fall. The building's architect is Slaughter & Alred of Pascagoula and the contractor is Mac's Construction Company of Hattiesburg.

Three arrested on drug charges

Two Bay St. Louis men and a Waveland man have been arrested in an incident in which authorities seized 65 small bags of cocaine totalling a presently undetermined weight.

According to Hancock County Sheriff's Department Investigator Glen Strong, Robert Jack Smith Sr., 56, of 150 Cathy Drive, Bay St. Louis, was arrested and charged with possession of a controlled substance with intent to distribute and possession of a firearm.

Also arrested were Roland Williams, 29, of 340 Old Spanish Trail, Bay St. Louis, who was charged with possession of a controlled substance with intent to distribute and with disobeying a lawful order; and Joseph Nelson, 34, of 502 Campbell Circle, Waveland, who was charged with possession of a controlled substance with intent to distribute, Strong said.

All three were arrested at about 7:45 p.m. Thursday at Smith's residence.

The cocaine was seized along with a .38 caliber Smith and Wesson gun, $532 in cash and various drug paraphenalia, the investigator said.

Strong said bond was set at $5,000 bond each on the new charges, but Smith and Nelson are being held for no bond because of additional parole violation charges.

Waveland man arrested

The Hancock County Sheriff's Department has arrested a Waveland man on a sexual battery charge.

Investigator Delbert Seay said Richard Allen Hall, 25, of 928 Longo St., Waveland, who had been arrested Friday, made an initial appearance before Justice Court Judge Joseph Dobson Saturday morning.

Dobson set bond at $10,000.

Seay stated that the case involved a female juvenile and that the sheriff's department received assistance in the investigation from Hancock County Welfare Department Caseworker Celeste Proulx.

Consumer Update

By Janet K. Lukens
Coast Consumer
Management Center

Bankruptcy may seem to be the answer to an abused credit situation and harassing creditors but many consumers are finding out too late that a bankruptcy is not to their advantage.

A straight bankruptcy (Chapter 7) filing will stay on your credit record for ten years. This information is available to anyone from whom you request credit. It can affect your ability to receive future credit. This is especially important if you want to acquire long-term credit such as a mortgage or an unsecured loan.

You will still be liable for certain debts after a Chapter 7 bankruptcy. Those debts include child support or alimony; taxes owed to the local, state, or federal government; money owed on a secured loan in which items pledged as collateral are kept by the debtor; and money owed for a government-backed college loan.

When petitioning the Clerk of the United States Bankruptcy Court, you must pay a filing fee. This fee is in addition to fees charged by your attorney for his or her services. Compare the total fees for the bankruptcy to the total amount of debt you will actually discharge.

Consider your alternatives. Contact each of your creditors so they know your situation. If necessary, ask for a reduced payment plan. Many creditors are willing to work with consumers who are sincere in wanting to meet their credit obligations. In some cases, creditors may defer payments, and drop interest charges or late fees for those receiving credit counseling.

Seminar to explore marketing art

Hattiesburg Civic Arts Council has announced a one-day seminar directed toward presenters of the arts—either organizations or individuals—to be held Thursday, Jan. 21 at the Sherrill Community Center.

Seven experts in fundraising and marketing will share information with arts advocates from the Hattiesburg area at 'The Bottom Line: A Seminar for Marketing the Arts,' according to Nan Stevens, HCAC program director and seminar chairman.

"Most people agree on the importance of presentation of the arts in any community," said Mrs. Stevens. "The hard part is when it comes to paying the bills while effectively delivering the art product."

"This seminar is specifically designed to help these presenters do just that—pay the bills," she said.

Speakers for the seminar will include local and other businessmen, arts advocates and consultants who have fundraising and marketing expertise. Representatives from the media will give presentations about publicizing arts events.

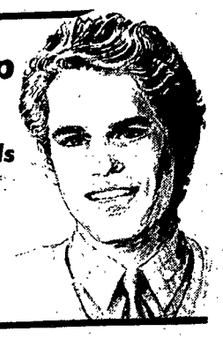

The marketing seminar will be open to all individual and organizational presenters of the arts in the Hattiesburg area. Advance registration is now being taken at the HCAC office in the Saenger Center, 583-6005. The registration fee is $15, due by Jan. 12.

Registrants for the seminar will receive a "bonus" at the end of the day with a show and reception with painter, designer and craftsman Henry La Cagnia of Hattiesburg, whose work will be on display at the Lida G. Rogers Gallery at the Saenger Center. The reception will be held at the gallery from 4 to 6 p.m. and the public is invited as well as seminar participants.

The seminar will open at 9 a.m. with registration. The morning panel session will get underway at 9:30 a.m. moderated by Eric Reidenbach, director of the Center for Business Development and Research at the University of Southern Mississippi. Other speakers at the morning session, focusing on fundraising will be Ronee Holmes of New Orleans, marketing consultant specializing in the arts; Earl Martin of Jackson, past president of the Jackson Arts Alliance and president of Friends of the Arts; Bob Patrick of Kosciusko, treasurer of Mid-Mississippi Arts Council, and Mac Groves of Jackson, chief executive officer and managing director of New Stage Theater.

The afternoon session, starting at 1:30 p.m., will focus on marketing. Speakers will include Patrick and Jack White of Starkville, director of the honors program and Lecture Series Arts Programming at Mississippi State University. The afternoon session also will include presentations from madia representatives about effectively publicizing events.

N.O. museum to show the art of Wedgwood

The name Wedgwood immediately brings to mind blue and white vases, cameos, and fine china. But the famous English potters went beyond those classic pieces to produce an array of decorative objects in a number of colors and materials.

These lesser-known forms of Wedgwood artistry, as well as the familiar neoclassical pieces are the focus of the exhibition, The Enduring Appeal of Wedgwood: The Irving Gerson Collection, on display at the New Orleans Museum of Art Jan. 24 through March 6.

New Orleanian Irving Gerson prefers to focus his attention and his collection on Wedgwood pieces of the 18th and 19th centuries. While other collectors sought only the highly prized 18th-century wares, Gerson's broader taste enabled him to take notice and possession of rare, late-Victorian era pottery. As a result, the Gerson collection contains precious, non-traditonal Wedgwod pieces, and many more easily identifiable works.

Josiah Wedgwood (1730-1795) came from a family of potters in Staffordshire, an area of England where pottery was the main industry. But Josiah would not only continue the family tradition, but also be given credit for making the Wedgwood name a household word and elevating the craft from a cottage industry to an art form.

Among Josiah's innovative concepts was marking his wares on the bottom, identifying them as "Wedgwood." He was also among the first to use illustrated catalogues of his products.

Wedgwood was intensely secretive about the processes which went into the making of his pottery, from the composition of the clay, to the formulas for his glazes and firing procedures.

When one product or style was becoming popular and imitated, he would order the colors and shapes changed, always staying one step ahead of competition that never could quite catch up.

Visitors to the collection will be treated to works not easily recognized as Wedgwood. For instance, Jasperware, more famous as the blue and white wares, is shown in a gilded beige Jasperware urn resembling bronze. The urn also differs from what is traditionally thought of as Wedgwood in its height, standing over 20 inches.

Also included in the collection are a pair of heavy, black basalt vases mounted in gilded bronze and hand-enameled in Chinese famille rose style. The renowned black basalt is a finely grained stoneware, which, when fired, gave a more even hue than bronze, making it the ideal medium for classically inspired vases, medallions, and busts.

Typical of the 19th-century works are bas-relief panels used in furniture or decoration. The panels, in the classical aesthetics of Greece and Rome, are much like "Wedgwood" vases made of pottery with raised white figures and scenes.

The raised portions of the panels were made in a mold, then, barely dry, were lifted out, moistened, and applied to the colored background. The technique is called "sprigging."

Workers refined the reliefs by cutting around and scraping away extra clay before the piece was fired. This extra, time-consming detail is typical of Wedgwood pottery.

After his death in 1795, the factory of Josiah Wedgwood continued to make its range of wares, often using old, 18th century molds.

Innovations of the early 19th century carried out by his sons included metallic-luster wres, underglaze-blue printing on earthenware, and, in the 1820's, the production of bone china.

The factory continues to make fine ceramics and china today in the tradition of the high standards set by the founder himself.

A monument, built to him in his hometown of Stoke-on-Trent, appropriately reads, "He converted a rude and inconsiderable manufactory into an elegant art and an important part of the national commerce."

The Enduring Appeal of Wedgwood: The Irving Gerson Collection is a celebration of the man and his art.

Exhibitions in the Melvin P. Billups Gallery of Decorative Arts are made possible by a grant from the G&F Armour Foundation.

VA cost of living increase okayed

WASHINGTON— The Congress has approved a 4.2 percent cost-of-living adjustment in Veterans Administration compensation benefits paid to more than 2.2 million veterans with service-connected disabilities. The increase, retroactive to Dec. 1, also applies to dependency and indemnity compensation (DIC) paid to spouses and children of veterans who have died of service-related causes.

The new compensation rates, as well as additional amounts due since the effective date of the COLA, most likely will be reflected in March 1 checks.

The Congress also voted to extend the application deadline for the Veterans' Job Training Act from Dec. 31 through June 30, 1988. An additional extension and other program amendments are expected to be considered early next year.

The Veterans' Job Training Act partially reimburses employers who train and hire long-term unemployed Korean conflict and Vietnam-era veterans. Since it ecame operational in November 1983, more than 57,000 veterans have been placed in jobs.

The county assessor-tax collector's office has already mailed the forms to qualified homeowners.

One of the reasons to file for Homestead Exemption by qualified homeowners is because of the big savings on property taxes.

We suggest to those of you who have received your forms to mail them back today so you won't forget.

Mardi Gras Day is only a few weeks from now and many of the Krewes are already having their balls.

It sure was bad news last week when we found out how the Krewe of Triton had disbanded.

The organization sure made a difference in the Bay-Waveland area with their parade on Mardi Gras Day.

Of course we still have the Krewe of Nereids, Krewe of Diamondhead's Land and Sea parades and the Krewe of Real People in addition to Pass Christian across the Bay during the Mardi Gras Season.

And it will not be too long when Civic Association's Annual St. Patrick's Day parade will be rambeling along the streets of Waveland.

MEC

Mississippi Economic Council
The State Chamber of Commerce

William McClure, a Columbus businessman, will lead the Mississippi Economic Council in 1988-89.

McClure currently is serving as vice chairman and chairman-elect of the state's largest business organization. He will assume the duties of chairman from current MEC Chairman Kenneth Milam of Jackson on May 1.

Serving with McClure will be Gene A. Triggs of Yazoo City as vice chairman and chairman-elect and Bill Sones of Brookhaven as treasurer.

Triggs and Sones were elected by the MEC Board of Directors at their meeting in Jackson last month.

Triggs is vice president of Mississippi Chemical Corporation. An active MEC member, he currently serves as chairman of the Council on Government. He is a former chairman of the Mississippi Manufacturers Association and a former board member of the Mississippi Department of Economic Development.

Sones is the president and chief executive officer of State Bank & Trust Company in Brookhaven. He has served in several committee leadership positions for the council.

The third annual Free Enterprise Games, designed to increase the interest of high school students in the economic system, will be held this spring at two regional locations.

The games are sponsored by Chevron U.S.A., Inc. and the American Enterprise Center, the economic education arm of the Mississippi Economic Council.

Peggy Howard, AEC director, said the South Mississippi competition will be held on Tuesday, February 23, in Hattiesburg, and the North Mississippi competition on Tuesday, March 1, at Mississippi State University.

In these games, students will be competing at the regional level to qualify as one of the top two schools in the state. The final round of competition featuring North and South winners will be held as part of the MEC Annual Membership Meeting in Jackson in mid-April.

Each school's team will consist of five students, seniors and juniors, a teacher sponsor and a business adviser from the community.

Schools interested in sending a team to the games should contact Howard at MEC, Box 1849, Jackson, MS 39215-1849; phone (601) 969-0022.

MABUS PROMOTES

Governor-elect Ray Mabus is wasting no time in getting the word out that Mississippi is on the move.

Mabus, who takes office on Tuesday, Jan. 12, met with members of the national media last week on a three-day tour to promote Mississippi and his plans for progress during the next four years.

The governor-elect met with New York Times representatives on Monday, Washington Post and Newsweek representatives on Tuesday, and Wall Street Journal, Cable News Network, Atlanta Constitution, and Atlanta Journal representatives on Wednesday.

Mabus has been getting requests for interviews from the national media since his election in November. The tour last week was a chance for him to sit down with some of the major players in the national media and tell them how Mississippi is changing.

For many years the national media has jumped on all the negative news coming from the state and downplayed or ignored anything good. Mabus can use this forum to set the record straight on the good that is happening here.

LEARNING DISABILITIES

Q. Our four-year-old son's preschool teacher thnks he may have a learning disability because he can't draw a circle and has trouble working puzzles. How can we help him?

The words "learning disabled" were probably almost unheard of twenty years ago, but today the term is often applied to children with certain difficulties in school.

It's now possible to recognize potential learning problems in children as young as two, three, and four-years-old, because more parents and teachers are aware of this condition, and more children are enrolled in preschool and daycare centers.

How exactly does a learning disability affect a child? A child with a learning disability perceives and understands things differently from most other children his age. The difference has a physiological—not emotional—basis, which interferes with his, ability to learn certain areas.

It may affect a child's ability to read, write, or remember; understand mathematical concepts; pay attention or organize his thoughts. Some experts offer parents a name for the specific type of learning disability. Others avoid such labels and simply describe the child's strenghts and weaknesses.

Pediatricians and educators agree that by the time a child is five-years old, he or she should be able to perform certain tasks such as drawing a circle and a square; counting to 10; understanding the concept of numbers—for example, he can give an adult four blocks; understanding physical placement such as "in front of" or "beside"; following directions; doing simple puzzles; recognizing colors; and hopping on one leg. Early recognition of a problem in one or more of these areas may spare the child years of incorrect teaching and possible psychological damage.

Parents should keep in mind that the child may not have a learning disability at all. Emotional or social problems could be the cause of his being slower in certain areas than his classmates. If he does have a learning disability, it may be described as "perceptual-motor dysfunction."

Some children with this problem can't draw a circle because they lack the skill to preceive it accurately—perceptual, the skill to reproduce it accurately—motor, or both. This dysfunction in some children affeects fine motor skills and interferes with their ability to catch a ball or ride a bike.

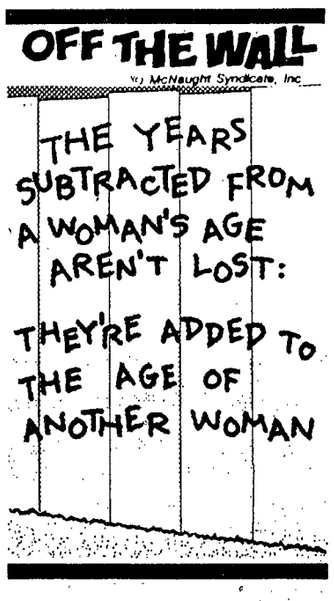

Concerned parents should ask their child's teacher how to request the multidisciplinary evaluation to which a child is entitled by federal law. A team of professionals will evaluate the child to identify his abilities and disabilities then draw up an individualized, educational plan, if needed.

Parents must work closely with their child's teacher, now and throughout his school year.

The best way to help a child learn if he's found to be learning disabled, is to protect his self-esteem. Try to avoid labeling the child. Make him feel loved and special. Compliment him often and offer very little criticism, though it's important to acknowledge that some tasks are hard for him to do. Concentrate on what he does well.

Children with perceptual-motor dysfunction may not excel at baseball, but often love music and books. Most importantly, remember that being learning disabled doesn't mean being unable to learn—it simply means being able to learn in a different way.

This "Matter of Health" was prepared in cooperation with physicians and educational counselors in Children's Hospital's Child Development Center at the University of Mississippi Medical Center.

Southern Baptist churches to observe 'Sanctity of Human Life Sunday'

Thousands of Southern Baptist churches will oberve Sanctity of Human Life Sunday on Jan. 17. This will mark the third year that Southern Baptists have officially commemorated the annual loss of unborn American children by abortion.

Southern Baptists have become increasingly concerned about the widespread practice of abortion. Except for biopsies, abortion is now the most common surgical procdure performed in the U.S. Nearly all abortions are performed for the purpose of birth control.

Southern Baptists have expressed their opposition to legalized abortion-on-demand by means of numerous resolutions passed at the annual meeting of the Southern Baptist Convention. In September of this year the Christian Life Commission, the official ethics agency of the Southern Baptist Convention, adopted a pro-life policy statement opposing abortion except to prevent the death of the mother.

According to Kirk Shrewsbury, executive director of Southern Baptists for Life, "Southern Baptists, because of our numbers and our history of involvement with social and moral issues, may be the key to the success of the pro-life movement. Sanctity of Human Life Sunday provides a means for Southern Baptist churches to join hands with Christians across our nation as we express our opposition to this barbaric practice of denying life to the most innocent members of our society."

"The Magic Place" premiers on ETV on Jan. 27

Abracadabra! There's magic in the air. Mississippi ETV will present a new series for kindergarten children beginning in January.

"The Magic Place" will premier on ETV at 9:30 a.m., Wednesday, Jan 27. Each program will air at 9:30 a.m. on Wednesdays and will be rebroadcast at 8:45 a.m., Thursdays.

"The Magic Place" offers exciting surprises and learning opportunities for five-year-olds. The new Mississippi ETV production is a series of 15 15-minute lessons designed to develop and enhance the "experiential backgrounds" of kindergartners. These learning situations are designed to give children the experience in certain areas that build the foundation for later learning.

Each program is devoted to a specific topic and is independent of the others, although a concept introduced in one program may be reinforced in another.

The entertainment vehicle for the learning fun is magic. Viewers are transported to places they might otherwise never have an opportunity to visit, like the zoo, a farm, a TV studio or an art studio. Once there, the children learn about the topic of the program by seeing it in its natural setting.

Original music, colorful sets, special effects, animation, dramatizations, real-life situations and puppetry are all used to teach the concepts of each program. These "tricks" help provide the "magic" used to teach the experiences kindergarten children need for first grade and thereafter.

Helping create the magic as well as participating in it are the three main characters of the series: Kelly Turtle, Bear Facts and Miss Mystery (Sherry Lynn Elkins). Miss Mystery serves as guide for the puppet characters and takes the two on magical trips to new and interesting places.

Both Bear Facts and Kelly Turtle have personality traits that make important points to kindergarten learners. Bear Facts wants very much to be a magician like Miss Mystery. Along the way he may get things wrong, but he profits from his mistakes.

Kelly Turtle is more of a perfectionist and takes the time to look at a problem critically before attempting to solve it. Even though, like kindergartners, the puppets approach learning differently, they both discover that it is fun, even "magical."

Some of the concepts being taught in "The Magic Place" are: symbols, the five senses, how we communicate, differences between people, families, communities, plants, insects and spiders, farming, farm animals, transportation, animals in the wild, energy and even fun places to visit.

These concepts are taught through visits from interesting people and to new places. Some programs will include visits from professionals. For the program on symbols, for example, the studio of a professional artist is visited, and Bear Facts and Kelly Turtle, as well as the children at home, learn how symbols are created and how they are used everyday for things like indicating the weather on a televison weather map, for instance.

Each program also features a special game show segment in which Bear Facts and Kelly Turtle learn more about the concept presented on the program and encourage the children at home to play along. This game is designed to develop the critical thinking skills of the viewer and to reinforce concepts taught on the program.

"The Magic Place," which is a production of Mississippi ETV, will be offered to other public television stations across the country, and a teacher's guide designed to complement the learning center approach to teaching has been developed for use in the kindergarten classroom. The guide will introduce the series and suggest follow-up activities the teacher may use to enhance the learning "magic" presented on each program.

Military Mention

Good guys, bad guys

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following excerpts were taken from an article in the Kadena Air Force Base newspaper and was written by Lt. Col. John Toner.

I had a very pleasant experience recently when I had the honor to serve as president of a promotion board. Four young men and women, two-stripers, were all vying for one stripe the board was prepared to award.

These were the good guys: impeccable records, good looking, articulate, smart, prepared, confident. I only wish we had four stripes to award.

On the other hand, I also have the privilege to serve as a military magistrate, a duty I always find disagreeable and unpleasant. I've been through a number of these magistrate's courts and invariably come away depressed and with knots in my stomach.

I have seen a steady stream of young people with a proclivity for rape, drugs, drunkeness, disregard for authority, recklessness and violence. Everyone I met in that formal setting had established an escalating pattern of misconduct, and the stories that unfolded during the proceedings painted a picture of an Air Force that I didn't know existed.

I was begining to get very jaded in my outlook, with a would-be criminal lurking behind every starched blue shirt I saw.

Until I met Airmen Ziena Schultheiss, Lizzette A. Schinski, Robert J. Cone and Russell Willoughby as they stepped smartly up to meet the board.

They were great. They restored my faith in the people that make up our Air Force.

Airman Ziena Baker Schultheiss, a 1981 graduate of Bay Senior High School, was awarded the promotion.

She is the daugther of Mrs. Thomas A. Wheelden of Bay St. Louis and Donald J. Baker of Mandeville, La.

She and her husband, Sgt. Wayne Schultheiss are both members of the United States Air Force and are stationed at Kadena Air Base in Okinawa, Japan with there one-year-old daughter, Laura.

WONDERWORKS

Adventures in babysitting await a young girl when she places herself and her young charge in jeopardy in ETV's "Wonderworks" premiere of "Taking Care of Terrific," airing at 7 p.m., Saturday, Jan. 16.

The one-hour program follows 14-year-old Enid, a child of busy, working parents, who makes the neighborhood park her special refuge when she befriends a bag lady and a street musician named Hawk.

Impotents Anonymous chapter founded in Slidell

The first meeting of the Slidell Chapter of Impotents Anonymous will be held Tuesday, Jan. 12 at 7:30 p.m. at the Sexual Medicine Institute of Southeastern Louisiana, 1337A 12th Street, Slidell.

The national organization's founder and president, Bruce A. MacKenzie, will attend the first meeting to answer questions and lead the discussion.

He and his wife, Eileen, founded the organization in 1982 to provide help and support for impotent men and their partners.

They based their program on their mutual experience with AI-Anon. Eileen later founded I-Anon for partners of impotent men.

The two are currently writing a book, "It's Not All In Your Head," describing their experiences and the problems of impotency.

Impotents Anonymous offers impotent men information in a professional setting. Participants will learn the numerous organic and psychogenic causes of impotence, as well as meet others who have overcome impotence.

Discussion will include the current cures and therapies for impotence, including psychotherapy, hormonal therapy, vascular surgery, surgical implantation, and other medical treatments.

The Slidell Chapter of Impotents Anonymous is sponsored by the Sexual Medicine Institute, a medical facility that offers medical and psychological aid to men and women suffering from sexual dysfunctions.

Urologists Esteban Romano, MD, and Mahmoud Daftary, MD, staff the Sexual Medicine Institute along with sex therapist Steven Southern, EdD, and gynecologist Jason Collins, MD.

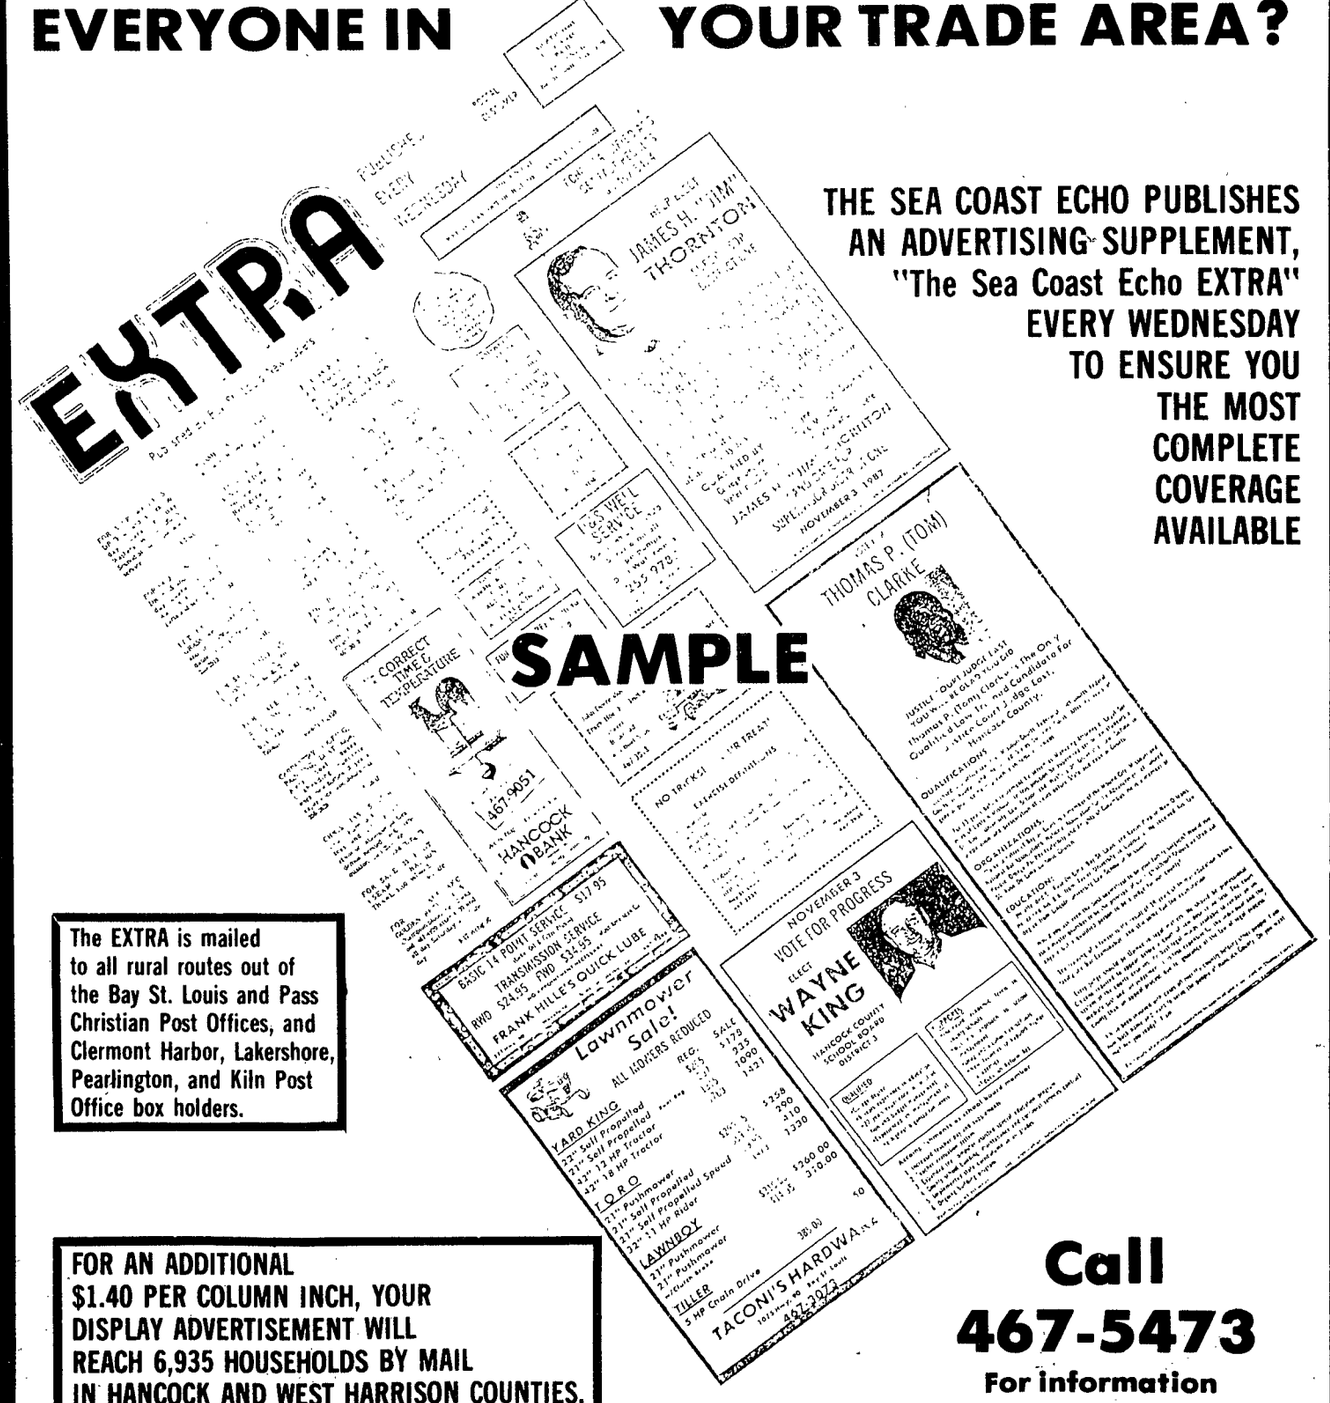

These physicians will participate in the Impotence Anonymous meetings to provide medical and psychological answers to participants' questions and concerns.

For more information, contact the Sexual Medicine Institute of Southeastern Louisiana at 641-2995.

A Special Report From Mississippi House of Representatives

The 1988 legislative session has gotten off to a relatively smooth beginning with the opening week devoted mostly to traditional swearing-in ceremonies, the election of officers and other organizational chores.

The legislative pace was expected to increase this week following the inauguration of incoming Governor Ray Mabus on Tuesday.

Several hundred bills and resolutions have been introduced in both chambers and are awaiting consideration during the 125-day session.

The State Constitution provides for the first session of a new four-year term to last 125 days. Other sessions are 90 days each year.

In the House of Representative, the session was convened at noon Jan. 5 by Secretary of State Dick Molpus. Following the opening prayer, the oath of office was administered by the Secretary of State to the 122 members, including 35 "freshman" legislators.

Highlights of the opening week included the election of Speaker Tim Ford, re-election of Speaker Pro Tempore Cecil Simmons, adoption of house rules and election of two important hous committees, Rules and Management.

Ford, a 36-year-old Tupelo attorney starting his third term in the Mississippi House, was chosen by acclamation to succeed retiring Speaker C.B. (Buddie) Newman. He emphasized team effort, a positive attitude and willingness to work in his opening remarks..

He concluded with these words: "Mississippi does not have the most of everything, but we can make the most of everything we have. Together, we can make a difference."

Simmons, a member of the House since 1972, also was elected by acclamation. He was first elected to the newly created office last year following approval of several House rule changes.

His responsibilities as Speaker Pro Tem include presiding over the House in the absence of the speaker, and serving as chairman of the Management Committee which oversees administrative and staffing matters for the House.

The 1987 rule changes were brought forward as part of the House rules adopted for the new term. There was an unsuccessful move to temporarily delay action on the 1988 rules, but the attempt was defeated by voice vote after a brief but debate.

Under the new rules, a majority of the members of the Rules Committee and Management Committee are elected by their colleagues, with two members chosen from each congressional district, rather than being appointed in past years.

Charles J. Jackson Jr. was re-elected Clerk of the House.

The House and Senate held a joint session to hear Governor Bill Allain's farewell address. Another joint session was held for the swearing-in of Lieutenant Governor Brad Dye and other state officials.

Major issues in the 1988 session are expected to include teacher salaries, additional funding for higher education, economic development, health care programs, constitutional revision, tort reform, Medicaid, and a manadatory county-unit system of road management for the 82 counties.

One of the biggest responsibilities of any session is the approval of operating funds for schools, universities, prison facilities, health care, and various state agencies and institutions. State finances will be a dominant issue again in 1988.

Legislators recently received copies of the 537-page Legislative Budget Report for the next fiscal year as prepared by the Legislative Budget Committee. The final decision on the reccommendations and the Governor's budget proposals will be in the hands of lawmakers.

PRESIDENT HONORED—Five past presidents of the Bay-Waveland Garden Club present a sixth past president with an honorary membership in the club. Jean (Mrs. Gordon) Gleim, has moved from the Bay-Waveland community after living here over 40 years. She had been a garden club member for most of those years, and in appreciation of her loyal support in all of the club's endeavors, the honorary membership was presented by, from left, Ethel Evans, Alice Holmes, Aggie Tompkins, Gleim, Alyce Newkirk and Lyn Nybo.

Blue Jeans Garden Club

Twenty-five members and guests were in attendance for the festivities as Mrs. A. M. Thomas, outgoing president, presented the gavel to Mrs. Feahney and read the oath of office to each of the new officers for 1988 as Mrs. Frank Klein Jr., a past president, pinned a Christmas corsage on each recently elected officer, Mrs. George Cox, vice-president; Mrs. George Heitzmann, secretary and Mrs. Robert Taconi, treasurer.

Guests introduced and welcomed were Mrs. Phinie Palmero, Mrs. Mae Colson, Mrs. Lou Reis, Mrs. Angie Faulstich and Mrs. Lucille M. Witter.

A brief meeting was opened with a prayer for members unable to attend. Mrs. Thomas thanked members for their loyal support throughout her tenure of office and also extended special thanks to the Christmas Party chairladies and their committees for a job well done, including luncheon chairlady, Mrs. James Lagasse; table decorations and corsages, Mrs. Cox; games and prizes, Mrs. Sidney Coogan and Mrs. Heitzmann; and awards, Mrs. J. C. Goodloe, Mrs. Klein and Mrs. Frank Peterson.

Games were played and prizes awarded to winners Mrs. Thomas and Mrs. Palermo.

The table decorations created by Mrs. Cox were given as door prizes to 10 ladies in attendance including Mesdames Taconi, Danna, Irene Graff, Goodloe, Palermo, Cox, Faulstich, Feahney, Klein and Christian Neubig.

Highlight of the Blue Jeans Christmas festivities was the awarding of the coveted Silver Bowl to Mrs. Heitzmann, the member winning the most points throughout 1987 in plant and flower judging competition. Seond place winner was Mrs. Neubig and third place (a tie), Mrs. Goodloe and Mrs. Lagasse were each presented a potted poinsettia plant. The first meeting of the new year will be 1 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 21 at the home of Mrs. Lagasse in Waveland.

Hancock Medical Center Women's Auxiliary

The January meeting of the auxiliary of Hancock Medical Center was held at the Waveland United Methodist Church at Central Avenue and Vacation Lane in Waveland. Ursula Favre opened the meeting with a prayer. Minutes of the previous meeting were read and Selma George reported on finances. Ina Piazza encouraged members to help inform the community of the Life Call project. It's a small price to pay to receive immediate emergency care in ones own home from professionally trained persons.

Betty Klietz made a request for white or pastel materials for activity bags. Donations may be dropped off at reception desk at the hospital.

Therea Bourgeois reported hours worked by the members and asked the ladies to remember to sign in and out each time they work.

VFW national president to visit Mississippi

Mrs. Joan Katkus, national president of the Ladies Auxiliary to the Veterans of Foreign Wars, will make her official visit to Mississippi on Jan. 24-27.

Mrs. Florence Bennett, state president, and members of the auxiliaries in Mississippi will welcome Mrs. Katkus of Wasilla, Alaska, to the state.

Mrs. Katkus is rallying the over 75,000 members, including over 7,500 from the state of Mississippi, behind her slogan "For the People."

"Elected at the 1987 National Convention in New Orleans, La. in August, she will lead the auxiliary's effort to break all previous records in the organization's 14 patriotic and service programs.

Mrs. Katkus selected the famous words from the Gettysburg address for her slogan not only because of the impact those words have had on our great nation, but also because the auxiliary truly provides needed services for the people of America. Each year a total of approximately 19 million hours of service and 27 million dollars are donated by the auxiliary members.

Soon after Mrs. Katkus, a native of England, became an American citizen she joined Auxiliary 9365, Wasilla, Alaska.

Her husband, Henry, served with the U.S. Army in Europe during World War II. Her concern with Veterans of Foreign Wars and Auxiliary work stems from her husband's involvement, her father's service in World War I and her two brothers' service in World War II; one was killed in action and the other was severely wounded.

Mrs. Katkus will be met at the airport by State President Florence Bennett and a delegation of officers and members of the auxiliaries in Mississippi. A reception will be held at the Ramada Coliseum in Jackson immediately after her arrival.

During the visit Mrs. Katkus will be shown Mississippi hospitality and will meet with auxiliary members, city and state officials, will tour the State Capitol, the Governor's Mansion, will appear on TV, tour the VA Medical Center and will be treated to Mississippi food at several local restaurants.

Mrs. Katkus will depart from Mississippi on Wednesday morning, Jan. 27, to visit another state on her tour of all states and the District of Columbia during her term of office.

Members of Ladies Auxiliary to Veterans of Foreign Wars Post No. 3253 who will attend and participate in the national president's visit will be Lucille Boudreaux, auxiliary president, and Harris Boudreaux, past post commander.

On Tuesday, Dec. 22, Mrs. Hazel Wohlschlegel, chairlady VACS, and Roland Wohlschlegel visited the Hotel Reed Nursing and Retirement Home and Miramar Lodge Nursing Home and distributed Christmas gifts to the veterans who live there. There were many smiles and happy people who enjoyed their visit.

Mmes. Geisenderfer and Saxon helped in the distribution of the pillows to the residents and many were the 'thank you's' that the members received from the happy residents. The members who participated in the project were Mmses. Roslyn Weathers, Beatrice Ladner, Minnie Geiger, Margie Schultz, Ethel Mae Fillingame, Winona Weinmann, Helen Pahlmann and Marguerite Fayard.

On Dec. 31, the regular monthly birthday party at the Hotel Reed Nursing and Retirement Home was held in conjunction with a New Year's Eve party. Mmes. Roslyn Weathers, community chairlady, and associate, Oris Planchard of the Auxiliary Unit 139, sang 'Happy Birthday' to the residents who celebrated during the month. Then followed up with the singing of Christmas carols, hymns and 'the oldies but goodies' and finished with 'Auld Lang Syne.' Refreshments were served and a good time was enjoyed by all.

A little can sometimes mean a lot

By Darlene Underwood

The hustle and bustle of the holiday season is past and New Year's resolutions are fresh on our minds. For some, the resolution was to lose a few extra pounds, for others it was to try to eat a healthier diet.

Whatever the resolution, keep in mind that change takes time. Several little changes, if done in combination with each other, can add up to a lot of calorie savings and/or a healthier diet.

Calorie Saving Tips

* Serve yourself on a small plate so that smaller portions do not look skimpy.
* Put your eating utensils down between bites. Use a teaspoon instead of a tablespoon to eat soups and cereal. By eating slowly you will usually eat less.
* Buy unsweetened juices and fruits rather than sweetened.
* For fruit-flavored yogurt, buy plain and add your own fruit. It will be lower in sugar and calories.
* Saute vegetables in a small amount of boullion or stock rather than oil.
* Substitute skim milk for whole milk, whole milk or evaporated skim milk for cream and yogurt for sour cream.

Healthier Diet

* Think high fiber when eating cereal, bread or baked snacks. A bran muffin is more filling and nutritious than a doughnut.
* Put raw, crunchy vegetables in lunches in place of chips which are high in fat and sodium.
* Use vegetables as "fillers" in recipes such as meatloaf or croquettes. In most recipes that already include vegetables, you can safely double the allotted quantity.
* Include fresh or unsweetened canned fruit several times a week for dessert in place of rich, high fat, high sugar desserts.
* Rather than syrup, use fruit or a thin smear of jam to sweeten pancakes and French toast. Try adding spices like nutmeg and cinnamon to the batter. They give a sweet taste to the batter so less sweet topping will be needed.
* Mix powdered dressing mixes, with yogurt, buttermilk, cottage cheese or tomato juice instead of oil or sour cream.
* When a recipe calls for mayonnaise, use half mayonnaise and half yogurt.

SMH ranks in top 38 hospitals in mortality study

Slidell Memorial Hospital was ranked among the 38 best hospitals in Louisiana in a mortality rate study conducted by the Health Care Financing Administration (HCFA) of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

Slidell Memorial Hospital was listed among 32 Louisiana hospitals that were found to be at the lower end of their anticipated mortality scale. Another six hospitals were found to have 1986 mortality rates below their anticipated rate.

The HCFA figures are computed from hospital billings records of Medicare patients and are categorized by high risk diagnostic categories such as cancer, stroke, heart disease, etc.

In each of the 16 risk categories, as well as in overall mortality rates, Slidell memorial Hospital was found to have mortality rates will within the expected range determined by the HCFA.

Slidell Memorial Hospital Administrator Bob Atkinson noted: "I am always cautious about commenting on these kinds of studies. But I'm not surprised Slidell Memorial Hosptial fared very well, indicating the above average quality of care available.

Tofu can make other foods different

The virtues of tofu are almost endless. This versatile soybean curd is packed with vitamins and minerals, very low in calories and saturated fats, easy to digest, and contains no cholesterol. It is also a complete protein, so it is no wonder that it has been a staple of most Asian diets for centuries.

Tofu (Pronounced Toe-foo) has been a major food staple and a source of protein in the oriental diet for thousands of years. It is a bland, custard-like products made from curdled soybean milk. Tofu is as much a part of Japanese culture and cookery as bread is in the United States.

Some people are adding tofu to their diets because of its nutritional value. In its fresh form, tofu contains 8 percent protein by weight and 53 percent when dried or frozen. It is a protein source that is low in saturated fats, sodium and calories.

Tofu's bland taste enables it to be used in a variety of ways. Mixed with other ingredients and spices it can be eaten as a main entree or as an accompaniment to a meal. It can be steamed, sauteed, pan-fried, baked, scrambled, marinated in sauces, crumbled raw in salads, and added to soups, and has other creative possibilities.

Tofu is also easily digested. Some contend that this increases its chances of becoming a major food item in the Western diet, where it may be used in hospitals, nursing homes, feeding programs for the elderly and school lunch systems.

But such virtuousness can have its drawbacks. Because it is so nutritious, many Western cooks believe that tofu is only for health food purists; surely nothing that good for you can taste good, too. This is an unfortunate misconception.

Tofu, like pasta, takes well to almost any treatment the cook can offer. It can be eaten fresh, steamed, broiled, baked, simmered or deep fried. It is a geat flavor absorber, and so is an ideal subject for many sauces and dressings.

It can become the center of an impressive array of soups, salads and main-course dishes. And, as our recipes demonstrate, you don't have to "think oriental" to enjoy tofu; with a little culinary imagination, its accent can become Italian, Mexican or Hungarian.

Although tofu appears in the market in at least twenty guises, the form most often encountered is a simple off-white square. It can range from the tender, custardy "silken" type to the firm and bouncy Chinese curd (called doufu).

If you can find only the softer curd, you can easily firm it up for dishes that call for the sturdier, more compressed variety. Just wrap it, weigh it and drain it until the curd has reached the desired degree of firmness.

Some recipes call for soft curds, some for firm. Keep this in mind when shopping for tofu.

Books are so called from the German buche meaning a beech tree, since beech bark was used for writing on before the invention of printing.

Southern Federal appoints senior vice president

Martin G. Jones, a native of Maxie, Miss., has just been appointed senior vice president of banking operations of Southern Federal Bank for Savings, announced Ray L. Crowell, president.

Jones was previously with Pike County National Bank—beginning with its initial organization—where he was in charge of accounting, account services, investment portfolio, purchasing, payroll, computer operations, asset-liability management and investor reporting. During his tenure, the bank added $35 million in total assets.

Prior to Pike County National, Jones served with First Guaranty Bank for Savings in Hattiesburg as vice president of loan administration, servicing $250 million in loans.

That's right, you do. Because stores that give you specials have to overcharge you on other items. Which is why you won't find any specials at Delchamps. What you will find is pricing that's absolutely lower on every item, everyday. Our customers think it's pretty special.

The new board of supervisors announced Jan. 4 that the technical advisory council will be revived and a comprehensive plan for repair and development of the beachfront and Beach Road is one of the county's eight major goals for the 1988-1992 term.

Taylor had urged the previous county administration to try to get the study expedited because Congressman Trent Lott had been instrumental in its implementation and had been expected to be a major asset in obtaining the $12 million in federal funds.

Jail officers complete training

Sheriff Ronald Peterson and Warden Jim Odom of the Hancock County Sheriff's Department report five county deputies have successfully completed the basic Jail Officer's Training Course developed by the National Sheriffs' Association and the National Institute of Corrections.

"Completion of this course by our officers will aid our department in coping with the challenges of the 1980's," Odom said.

Officers completing the training program include: Gerald I. Necaise, Russell J. Watts, John O. Felder, Anita Fowler and Charles O. Carver.

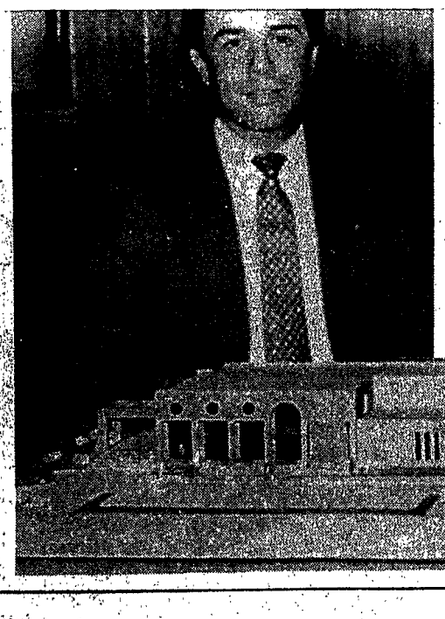

The Training program contains studies in law, medicine, administration, proper record keeping, accurate report writing, the newest developments in jail security, skills needed for dealing with violent prisoners, the alcoholic, the mentally ill, the suicide prone, and the mentally retarded.

These examples illustrate a few of the topics studied by the officer in this initial comprehensive course designed to familiarize jail personnel with some of the problems which plague our nation's jails.

"Today's jail officer is not the matron, guard or turnkey of yesterday," said Odom.

"It is a position which requires intelligence, continual training and strong, healthy personal characteristics if one is to survive the pressures of the job, Odom added. "This jail training should decrease the threat of lawsuits filed because of improper or insufficient training. Through constant training, our jail staff continues to sharpen their present skills to keep abreast of the pervasive waves of change confronting administrators running our nations's jails," Odom stated.

The National Sheriffs' Association is headquartered in Alexandria, Va. and is dedicated to professionalization in the office of sheriff. The National Institute of Corrections is a part of the United States Department of Justice.

PPI POWER OFFICE—Bay St. Louis-Pass Area Supervisor Randy Castello displays an s model of the original design for the new Mississippi Power Company office being constructed on the corner of Dunbar Avenue and the US-90 service road. Castello said the office is expected to be completed by mid-November and will replace the current one on Main Street, while the present Pass Christian facility will be retained for the convenience of customers who wish to continue paying bills there as well as for its storage facilities. Castello is presently using a temporary administrative office in Colonial Plaza across from Gulf National Bank, but the new facility will allow Mississippi Power to consolidate administrative, service and other functions for the Bay St. Louis-Pass Christian area. The architectural firm for the project is Slaughter and Allred of Pascagoula and the contractor is Mack's Construction of Hattiesburg.

...IPPI POWER OFFICE—Bay St. Louis-Pass ... Area Supervisor Randy Castello displays an ...t's model of the original design for the new Mississippi Power Company office being constructed on the corner of Dunbar Avenue and the US-90 service road. Castello said the office is expected to be completed by mid-November and will replace the current one on Main Street, while the present Pass Christian facility will be retained for the convenience of customers who wish to continue paying bills there as well as for its storage facilities. Castello is presently using a temporary administrative office in Colonial Plaza across from Gulf National Bank; but the new facility will allow Mississippi Power to consolidate administrative, service and other functions for the Bay St. Louis-Pass Christian area. The architectural firm for the project is Slaughter and Allred of Pascagoula and the contractor is Mack's Construction of Hattiesburg.

Jail officers complete training

Sheriff Ronald Peterson and Warden Jim Odom of the Hancock County Sheriff's Department report five county deputies have successfully completed the basic Jail Officer's Training Course developed by the National Sheriffs' Association and the National Institute of Corrections.

"Completion of this course by our officers will aid our department in coping with the challenges of the 1980's," Odom said.

Officers completing the training program include: Gerald I. Necaise, Russell J. Watts, John O. Felder, Anita Fowler and Charles O. Carver.

The Training program contains studies in law, medicine, administration, proper record keeping, accurate report writing, the newest developments in jail security, skills needed for dealing with violent prisoners, the alcoholic, the mentally ill, the suicide prone, and the mentally retarded.

These examples illustrate a few of the topics studied by the officer in this initial comprehensive course designed to familiarize jail personnel with some of the problems which plague our nation's jails.

"Today's jail officer is not the matron, guard or turnkey of yesterday," said Odom.

"It is a position which requires intelligence, continual training and strong, healthy personal characteristics if one is to survive the pressures of the job, Odom added. "This jail training should decrease the threat of lawsuits filed because of improper or insufficient training. Through constant training, our jail staff continues to sharpen their present skills to keep abreast of the pervasive waves of change confronting administrators running our nations's jails," Odom stated.

The National Sheriffs' Association is headquartered in Alexandria, Va. and is dedicated to professionalization in the office of sheriff. The National Institute of Corrections is a part of the United States Department of Justice.

The new board of supervisors announced Jan. 4 that the technical advisory council will be revived and a comprehensive plan for repair and development of the beachfront and Beach Road is one of the county's eight major goals for the 1988-1992 term.

Taylor had urged the previous county administration to try to get the study expedited because Congressman Trent Lott had been instrumental in its implementation and had been expected to be a major asset in obtaining the $12 million in grant funds.

The board agreed because Lott is now running for the seat being vacated by retirement of Senator John Stennis and the supervisors did not know if other congressmen would support the project.

The new board of supervisors announced Jan. 4 that the technical advisory council will be revived and a comprehensive plan for repair and development of the beachfront and Beach Road is one of the county's eight major goals for the 1988-1992 term.

Taylor had urged the previous county administration to try to get the study expedited because Congressman Trent Lott had been instrumental in its implementation and had been expected to be a major asset in obtaining the $12 million in grant funds.

The board agreed because Lott is now running for the seat being vacated by retirement of Senator John Stennis and the supervisors did not know if other congressmen would support the project.

Jail officers complete training

Sheriff Ronald Peterson and Warden Jim Odom of the Hancock County Sheriff's Department report five county deputies have successfully completed the basic Jail Officer's Training Course developed by the National Sheriffs' Association and the National Institute of Corrections.

"Completion of this course by our officers will aid our department in coping with the challenges of the 1980's," Odom said.

Officers completing the training program include: Gerald I. Necaise, Russell J. Watts, John O. Felder, Anita Fowler and Charles O. Carver.

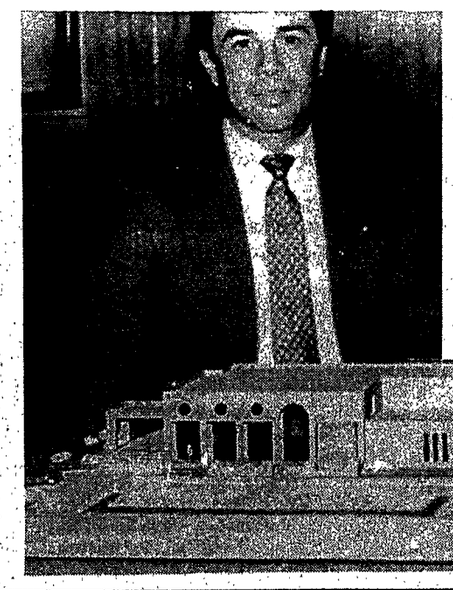

The Training program contains studies in law, medicine, administration, proper record keeping, accurate report writing, the newest developments in jail security, skills needed for dealing with violent prisoners, the alcoholic, the mentally ill, the suicide prone, and the mentally retarded.

These examples illustrate a few of the topics studied by the officer in this initial comprehensive course designed to familiarize jail personnel with some of the problems which plague our nation's jails.

"Today's jail officer is not the matron, guard or turnkey of yesterday," said Odom.

"It is a position which requires intelligence, continual training and strong, healthy personal characteristics if one is to survive the pressures of the job, Odom added. "This jail training should decrease the threat of lawsuits filed because of improper or insufficient training. Through constant training, our jail staff continues to sharpen their present skills to keep abreast of the pervasive waves of change confronting administrators running our nations's jails," Odom stated.

The National Sheriffs' Association is headquartered in Alexandria, Va. and is dedicated to professionalization in the office of sheriff. The National Institute of Corrections is a part of the United States Department of Justice.

ISSIPPI POWER OFFICE—Bay St. Louis-Pass tian Area Supervisor Randy Castello displays an tect's model of the original design for the new Mississippi Power Company office being constructed on the corner of Dunbar Avenue and the US-90 service road. Castello said the office is expected to be completed by mid-November and will replace the current one on Main Street, while the present Pass Christian facility will be retained for the convenience of customers who wish to continue paying bills there as well as for its storage facilities. Castello is presently using a temporary administrative office in Colonial Plaza across from Gulf National Bank, but the new facility will allow Mississippi Power to consolidate administrative, service and other functions for the Bay St. Louis-Pass Christian area. The architectural firm for the project is Slaughter and Allred of Pascagoula and the contractor is Mack's Construction of Hattiesburg.
